

FREEDOM OF INFORMATION ACT 2000
ENVIRONMENTAL INFORMATION REGULATIONS 2004

Your request for information has now been considered and the Council's response to your questions is shown below.

You asked:

It is my understanding that dotted around your area there may be induction loops under the road surface that can monitor the amount of traffic passing on the road above and the speed of individual vehicles, but without the facility to record any details as to the registration number of the vehicle or any other way of identifying who the car belongs to or who was driving it.

If you have induction loops or similar type devices in your area, please answer the following questions.

- 1. Please give the site location for the induction loops where, in 2012, it was assessed from the data that the smallest proportion of drivers complied with the speed limit on that section of road. Please give the site, the speed limit at that site, the total number of vehicle movements recorded by the equipment and the percentage of these that were travelling in excess of the speed limit.
- 2. Please give the site location for the induction loops where, in 2012, the highest individual vehicle speed was recorded? Please give the site, the speed limit at that site, the speed recorded and the date and time the speed were recorded as having taken place.

ANSWER

Whilst Leicester City Council does have various types of detectors installed at many junctions and pedestrian crossings, none of these capture speed data.
