

FREEDOM OF INFORMATION ACT 2000

Your request for information has now been considered and the Council's response to your questions is shown below.

You asked:

Bus Lane Fine

I have been told by Leicester City Council that, under the Freedom of Information Act, if I write to you, you will tell me exactly how much this ridiculous case has cost the taxpayers of Leicester.

ANSWER

The Council routinely records evidence of all contraventions, as required by law, and employs an officer to manage the process of recording contravention, this issuing of fines, and dealing with customer queries. Some staff time is involved in preparing a particular case at appeal but this is generally marginal and too small to ascribe a cost to a particular case. Appeals are described and provided for under the statute The Bus lane Contraventions (Penalty charges, Adjudications and Enforcement) (England) Regulations 2005 and there is no cost to the Council for hearings and associated administration of these.
