Introduction

THE BACKGROUND TO THE SURVEY

The Survey of Leicester was undertaken jointly by Leicester City and Leicestershire County Councils with some financial support from the Home Office and the Commission for Racial Equality. The University of Leicester and the Leicestershire Health Authority also provided some assistance

The purpose of the Survey was to obtain information which could be used to combat racial discrimination in Leicester. Its principal aim was to provide reliable information on the size, distribution and characteristics of the various ethnic, religious and language groups in the City.

About 16,700 randomly selected households were interviewed between February and April 1983. This means that about 1 in 6 of the households in the City were selected for interview. Each household was asked a range of questions which included the size of the household and the age, sex, place of birth, ethnic origin, language, religion, diet and employment status of the residents. The public response to the Survey was excellent with only 9.4% of those contacted refusing to participate. Overall, 83.2% of addresses provided a successful interview.

THE WARD DATA

The "Initial Report of Survey" was published in September 1984 and provided information for the City as a whole. This booklet provides a summary of the results of the Survey for each of the 28 new wards of Leicester and some of the results in the tables are shown graphically in maps and diagrams. The findings highlight the diversity of the population across different parts of the City. The information in this report will assist the City and County Councils and other organisations providing services in the City, in ensuring that policies reflect and respond to the needs of the local population in different areas.

Three tables for the City as a whole, which were not in the "Initial Report of Survey" are also included in this booklet.

HOW HAVE THE WARD FIGURES BEEN CALCULATED?

For the purpose of the 1981 Census of Population, the City was split into some 600 separate areas called Enumeration Districts (ED's). The information from the Survey of Leicester was allocated to the appropriate ED's and then the ED's were grouped together to provide figures for the wards. Following the Survey however, the ward boundaries were changed by the Boundary Commission and the number of wards in the City increased from 16 to 28. The data presented in this booklet has been re-assigned to these "new" wards on the basis of the location of the household within the original enumeration district. Where an ED was split by the "new" ward boundary it has been assigned to a "new" ward in such a way as to ensure a representative distribution of households throughout the City.

HOW RELIABLE ARE THE FIGURES?

As only a sample of the households in the City were interviewed it has been necessary to "gross-up" the figures to the City total. The figures presented in this booklet are therefore estimates and readers should bear this in mind when using the information. The figures are however reliable estimates and care has been taken to ensure that they are accurate.

As in all sample surveys the results are subject to what is known as sampling error. This arises because only a sample of households were included in the Survey and they may not be totally representative of all households. The extent of the sampling error is dependent on both the size and design of the Survey. The sampling error can be calculated statistically and is commonly known as a confidence interval. It is usually calculated as a certain range within which, 95 times out of 100, the true figure will lie. For example, the Survey of Leicester was designed so that for a group of 1,500 households we can be 95% confident that the true figure is between 1,327 and 1,673 households, that is between plus or minus 11.5% of the Survey estimate. The confidence interval varies according to the size of the group being considered; the smaller the number the greater the margin of error is likely to be and therefore small numbers need to be used with caution. As the Survey was based on a sample of households the confidence intervals for individuals is likely to be greater than the confidence intervals for households.

A fuller explanation of how the statistical reliability of the Survey has been calculated is to be found in the "Initial Report of Survey".

STATISTICAL WORK SINCE THE INTERIM REPORT

Since the "Initial Report of Survey" was published further work refining the results of the Survey of Leicester has been undertaken. This covered three areas:-

- (i) The "grossing up" figure has been refined following more detailed analysis of non-response. The more accurate figures are presented in this ward booklet and as a result the City-wide totals in the tables differ from those in the "Initial Report of Survey".
- (ii) Where possible the Survey of Leicester figures have been compared with those of the 1981 Census of Population, undertaken by central government and covering all households. On the whole these comparisons suggest that the Survey results provide an accurate picture of the composition of Leicester's population. There are some obvious differences in the findings but most of these can be explained e.g. by the two year gap between the two surveys.
- (iii) It was suggested in the "Initial Report of Survey" (p16) that the presence of students in Leicester at the time of the fieldwork of the Survey led to the Survey estimate of total population being greater than that of the Census. Detailed analysis of the wards concerned confirmed this hypothesis.

The conclusion of all of this work suggests that the results of the Survey of Leicester are reliable estimates at the level of individual wards and the City as a whole.

TERMINOLOGY

This booklet uses the broad terms "White", "Asian", and "West Indian" to describe people's ethnic origin. The term "White" refers to people originating from European countries and their descendents. The term "Asian" refers to people originating from the Indian Sub-Continent and their descendents. Other Survey questions on place of birth, religion and first language have been used to identify different groups within the Asian population. The term "West Indian" refers to people from the Caribbean and their descendents. It was used in preference to the term "Afro-Caribbean" as it was more commonly used in Leicester at the time of the Survey.

February 1988

The Survey of Leicester was undertaken by Leicester City Council and Leicestershire County Council during the first half of 1983. Financed by the Local Authorities, with assistance from the Home Office and the Commission for Racial Equality, the Survey is believed to be the first of its kind in the U.K. Apart from its local interest, results may be relevant to the work of researchers and policy-makers elsewhere.

Some 16,700 interviews were successfully undertaken, representing 15.9 per cent of the households in Leicester. The massive data set thus acquired, which relates to over 45,500 individuals, includes information about age, sex, ethnic origin, religion, language, diet, household and employment circumstances. Comparisons with the 1981 Census of Population suggest that the sampling and survey results are very accurate.

Public authorities in Leicester are using the results of the Survey to improve their understanding of, and service to, the minority ethnic populations and to combat racism in the City.

Further information about the Survey is available from the Chief Executive, Leicester City Council, New Walk Centre, Welford Place, Leicester LE1 6ZG. Telephone 0533 549922 extension 6019 (orders) or extension 6071 (enquiries).
